

Motivation letter

Hello Ina,

I saw that you are looking for UX/UI Designer in Berlin. Going through the job description I found that this opportunity could be what I was looking for a long time because of my specialization on difficult, unusual interfaces and experience in a product design. Also, I'm the passionate 🌍 traveler myself.

My diverse background helps me to solve complex problems, build flexible, scalable systems and informational architecture.

In the past, I had about 5 years experience in leading small design and product teams 3 of them like the owner of my own agency, also managing freelance teams.

As a mentor for my junior colleagues, I listen, understand weaknesses and strangenesses of the team, prevent conflicts, find compromises, help people to find limits and feel responsible for their work, and, of course, motivate them to grow and inspire.

I like strong logic in UX and exciting emotional UI and dislike when these terms are mixed, because, for me, both are parts of long product designing process and a company which thinks the same way is the best place to be. ✨

That's why I decided not to hesitate and ✍️ write to you (also send my 📄 CV and 🗑️ portfolio link: <http://victoriaonishchuk.com>).

Victoria Onishchuk
